EXPERIENCE aeraus THEORY.

B. W. EVANS' CAMOMILE PILLS, having long acquired an exalted reputation in private practice by an invalible efficacy which could only have resulted from their exalted worth, he is confident that he has only to get them extensively known to render that reputation universal. Unlike the clamorous host of quack medicines with which the columns of the public press are crowded, these Camomile Pills, have the testimony of the whole medicial profession in their favor, and not a single case of ill consequences or inefficacy to be alledged against them. Their very name candidly acknowledges what they are composed of—and they honestly promise no more than they taithfully perform. They are composed of a beautiful extract of the Camomile flowers, in which all the tonic and restorative principles of that inestimable plant is preserved; and its irritating principle is neutralised by an alkeline infusion—they, therefore, necessarily afford immediate relief, in all cases of dyspepsia, or other derangements of the digestive organs. In sick headaches, nervous debility spasmodic affections, prostration of muscular and vital energy, and consequent loss of ease, comfort, and ultimately of life itself they restore health in the most impaired and hopeless constitutions, not by being taken in excessive quantities, for the necessity of their use continually decreases, as of course it ought to do, if they are good for anything—by their direct adaptation to the powers of the human stomach. There is one discase, however, which is unhappily but too prevalent, in which their ability will perhaps become pre-eminent, and that is in the disease which is produced by violent diastic purges, taken in pernicious quantities, and which may be termed that a classic purges, and animal, produced by this destructive practice, can only be relieved by a tonic, and such as the Camomile preparation contains. Dr W. Evans supplies an antidote for a host of public poisons, and a remedy for all those diseases which he professes to cure

The bowling alleys have been newly relaid, and good attendants provided.

The larder will be stored with the best of provisions, and such delicacies as the acasons afford. The bar will also be kept supplied with choice wines and liquors. Good stabling for horses.

As our notice of the Poem noticed below was rather superficial, we copy the following from the Mercantile Journal, in justice to its author:-

The Social Principle, a Poem delivered before the Northern Debating Society, Sept. 9, 1836 . By Lewis Josselyn. We differ in opinion from the editor of the Post, in regard to this unpretending poem. It appears to us to be much better than the effusions which generally accompany such occasions as that upon which it was given, although we should probably disagree with many things the author might say on the same subject in prose. We think it exhibits a talent for poetry which might be cultivated to much advantage. Some passages would be creditable to writers of far more practice and pretensions than the author of this production. We extract the following scrap, not as a specimen of the strictly poetical part of the pamphlet, but as a good description of what we fear often happens in these " hard times." SHAVING.

" And yet, as if he lived for self alone, Man's only bliss of centers in his own.

Go through the market, stand a while on 'Change—You may not, need not take a wider range:— There stands a Shylock, opposite the way,
Like a flerce tiger watching for his prey.
He comes!—(the hunter knows full well his game)—
The downcast look—the weak and trembling frame— The deep and sunken eye—the pallid check—His voice in broken accents, low and weak— His voice in broken accents, low and weak—
And every gesture—every look and tone,—
All speak—Misfortune's marked him for her own.
The flend, (with such a smile as Satan gives,
When his sure victim, trembling, bleeding, writhes
Beneath his damning grasp and demon eyes,)
Marks out the object for his richest prize.
As the lone mariner on ocean's wave,
While home and all its joys before him rise,
As a last refuge to the savage flies,
And while he hopes for succor, lonely dies—
So from the flend the victim seeks relief:
The sum—'t is small, the time of payment brief:— The sum—'t is small, the time of payment brief:—
It soon comes round;—Misfortune presses still;
The coldest damps his very life-blood chill:
The serpent coils with iron grasp, and cries
Exultingly—" My bloodless victim dies!"

BOSTON MORNENG POST.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1836.

Mr Biddle in his humbug letter to J. Q. Adams says-"The first consequence (of the order to receive only specie for the public lands) was, that the banks nearest the land offices ceased to make loans. The next was, that they strove to fortify themselves by accumulating specie. It was just at this moment that the warrants for transfers were put into their hands. The combination of the two measures produced a double result-first, to require the Banks generally to increase their specie, and next, to give them the means of doing it, by drafts on the Deposit Banks. * * * By this unnatural process, the specie of New York and the other commercial cities is piled up in the Western States—not circulated, not used but held as a defence against the Treasury-and, while the West cannot use it, the East is suffering for the want of it.

In the first place the great complaint of Mr Biddle's presses, heretofore, has been that the deposite banks have kept too little specie. But the real absordity of the suggestion is, that carrying specie from the Atlantic cities to the West, should make money scarce where it went as well as where it left. There was little specie carried to the West, compared to what Mr Biddle and his agents hoarded in the Atlantic cities.

We well remember that Mr Bicknell, of Philadelphia, a political friend of Mr Biddle, charged him publicly with buying bank notes in the early part of autumn, and thus interfering with Mr Bicknell's business. But the pitiful profits in buying these bank notes was not, as Mr Bicknell seemed to suppose, Mr Biddle's object. His design was to run these banks and make a pressure to affect the elections. He has no knowledge of any other than his money power, and is incapable of appreciating the moral power by which this country is governed. When he found himself publicly exposed, in buying up these bank bills, he probably resorted to brokers and made the runs privately through them, which it was no longer prudent to do through his bank in a public manner.

He further says-

"The public lands are exposed to public auction, the prices reduced, in order to encourage sales, and the President stands by, exulting at the amount, when suddenly he declares that he will permit no speculations, and that he will raise the price of the lands by raising the price of what alone he will receive for them. Now, supposing it true, that men have bought much land. What right has the President to dictate to the citizens of this country, whether they buy too much land or too much broadcloth? They might be permitted to know and to manage their own concerns quite as well as he does, leaving the evil, if it be one, to correct itself, by its own excess. If he prohibits the receipt of any thing but specie to correct land speculations, he may make the same prohibition as to the duties on hardware, or broadcloth, or wines, whenever his paternal wisdom shall see us buying too many shovels, or too many coats, or too much Champaigne—and thus bring the entire industry of the country under his control."

This is a very sophistical and shallow view of the subject. Formerly the public lands were sold on a credit at two dollars an acre. The credit system, however, being found objectionable, it was abolished and the price of land reduced to one dollar and a quarter the acre, by an act of Congress. This provision of the law requiring cash payments was practically evaded by the western speculators "Every body has heard of the Emperor Alexander's son has for sale at No 10 South Market street, 200 canvassed Hams, in shipping order—100 bbls prime Pork, N. Y. City inspection—1000 do Beef, different qualities.

"Every body has heard of the Emperor Alexander's through the means of Banks. Individuals would associate, procure a bank charter, become its stockholders and disconnection—1000 do Beef, different qualities.

"Every body has heard of the Emperor Alexander's liason with the captivating Madame Narith—. This lady was allied, on her mother's side, to the Imperial family. Her hysband held an appointment of the Court of the notes of this Bank, which notes finally rested for redemption upon the notes of the purchasers due to the Bank. Thus, by giving their own notes to their own bank, they were enabled to evade the law requiring cash payments, and the Treasury was liable to heavy and serious losses, not only liable, but if the system had continued, it must inevitably have made them.

It became the duty of the President to guard against such losses, and he adopted a legal and an effective course, to attain that object. The President had no right, nor has he claimed the right, to dictate to the citizens of this country, to buy much or little of any thing, but he certainly had a right, and it was his duty to get payment for what they bought of the government. And if the fact of demanding what the law requires, cash, for the public lands, stopped the speculations of those who had only a kind of double and twisted credit with which to buy them, we do not think their misfortunes can be rightfully charged to any improper act of the President. The country will never censure him for not bartering the public domain, for doubtful promises In this censure Mr Biddle will stand alone in his glory.

For the Boston Morning Post.

Mr. Editor:-Now that the elections are over, and the excitement occasioned thereby being allayed, it affords peculiar gratification to look abroad and view the complete success which has resulted to the cause of democracy. On the right hand and on the left we have been greeted with results of the most cheering nature; and the fact that the people are neither to be cajoled nor brow beaten, is more firmly established than ever. The true sovereigns know and feel the position which they occupy; and they wield their power according to the honest and ensuppressed dictates of their hearts. Two months since it was an utter impossibility, in the opinions of our opposers, for the now successful candidate for the presidency to be elected by the people; this idea they clung to with the tenacity of a dying man to the last hold upon life, till all their expresses were suppressed by facts, and then they told us that although he had secured his election, still he was a minority president. A very plausible excuse indeed to conceal their chagrin and disappointment. Now, that they are "used up" on this head, they have commenced forming a cabinet, and selecting various other officers for the new president. How obliging they are! What a world of heavy ponderings and indecisions they would save him! They have it all cut and dried; all marked out as plain as the light of day. In the mean time, however, between the selection and appointment, they had better rig granny Harrison in the old petticoat, and set him off on another campaign for the presidency. It will take him full four years to reach the goal.

Now that Congress has met, we are assured that the members have come together with mutual good will and kind feelings; and that the Vice President is all smiles, and he may possibly make a good President. What does all this portend? It is not possible that they intend to concelle to the democracy a little of "the deceacy"? They cannot do that without depriving themselves of all they possess. Time will reveal their treasonable intentions. The whiggies are very busy "about this time," as the Almanacs say, calculating the chances of Mr Johnson's election to the Vice Presidency. They have a hope that he will be defeated-"While there's life, there's hope,"- but most men would surrender themselves to their fate. with as good a grace as possible, when surrounded by despair. It so happens that Mr Johnson belongs to the dominant party in the Senate, and as the election by that body will be decided by a party vote, no one can doubt of for a moment, upon comparing the qualifications of the opposing cambidates-who would be found to deliberate between the claims of a man who has spent the better part of an extended life in public business, and who is so intimately acquainted with parliamentary affairs as Colonel Johnson, and one who is comparatively a mere tyro in le-

Tariff Compromise .- We have often declared, in effect, that whenever the democratic party consent to compromise with the monopolists, the latter, with the aid of Law and Mammon, always contrive to get greater advantages than they previously enjoyed. Again, whenever two different sections of the country make a compromise of interests, it is always done at the expense of the poorer classes of the people. Thus, when the famous Tariff Compromise was made between the manufacturing interest at the North, and the agricultural interest at the South, the moupon the power classes of the people. The present tariff system is equivalent to a species of aristocratic taxation. One of the Foreign Reviews has noticed the fact, which is asserted by Mr Cambreleag, that the duties of importation fall heaviest in America, as well as in Europe, upon those articles which are mostly consumed by the middling and poorer classes of the community. Luxuries do not suffer so heavy a duty as the necessaries of life, and of the former, the most ordinary kind, which the wealthy classes do not use, are burdened with the heaviest duty. As it is remarked in one of the numbers of the Westminister Review, in an article upon, "Aristocratic Taxation,"-"even in America the best tea drinkers know how to favor themselves."

The people ought to be more jealous and watchful of these matters. If Messrs. Clay and Calhoun, by their compromise bill, effected a reconciliation between the North and South, so far we will credit them for good works; but if this bill was cunningly devised, so that the Northern capitalists threw all the burden of their pretended sacrifice upon the middling interest, then ought this celebrated bill to be considered a mere bug-bear. The administration party are accused of a disposition to violate this compromise. They meditate the violation of no compact whatever. No instrument, not excepting the Constitution itself, is too sacred to be examined, or too perfect to be modified. The same body of men who agreed upon the compromise, certainly enjoy the right of making a new bargain, and of correcting the imperfections of an existing compact.

The whigs bave talked very loudly of the evils of a surplus revenue, but they are highly indignant against certain measures which would tend directly to reduce it. The trath is, they wish to render the administration unpopular, by talking about the surplu srevenue, while they would not, for the salvation of their country, see it reduced, because they still entertain the vain hope that they may yet obtain the control of it, by gaining the ascendency. Let the people examine the facts in this case, with their own eyes, and reason upon them with their own understanding, and if they do not find the present tariff system, as established by Congress, equivalent to a species of aristocratic taxation-then let it remain unaltered.

Bed Rooms .- The New York Star contains a very sensible article under this head; it says with truth that we lay out all our decorations and arrangements in the internal administrations of our household affairs in such manner as to give the greatest possible dimensions and eclat to our drawing-rooms and parlors, cramping the bed-rooms into the smallest possible compass. This is the very reverse of the common sense mode adopted by the English and French, where the sleeping arrangements are, as they always should be made a subject of primary importance. While those are spacious and airy, the parlors are comparatively small. In France, in fact, the principal bed-room is often the saloon de reception, and the most beautiful chamber in the house, where the lady in her velvet cushioned chair, by the side of the silken drapery that adorns her bed, receives all her visitors.

Diet .- A letter to Burr, from one of his friends says-"Pray be more attentive to the recovery of your health. Let your diet and exercise be simple and regular; directed by experience. The former not too low. It is a good old maxim-be religious, but not superstitious. So respecting health, be exactly attentive, but not whimsical. Excuse the term, for invalids are but too apt to be governed by whim rather than reason and experience."

It seems by the same letter that printers were addicted to similar faults in 1780 that they are now, for the writer says-"I wish our printers did not deal so much in the marvellous."

(NE HUNDRED DOLLARS FOR ONE !-An important improvement has recently been invented in an article which is in general use and indispensable. The extent of the improvement is such as to take the preference of all others at five dollars each, while the expense of manufacturing them is less than two dollars—thus affording a profit of three dollars each. The annual demand for said articles in the New England States, is computed at four to each town-or 3200 in a territory of 300 towns. The profits arising from the sale of this number of the improved article, would be $9,600 dollars, and in fourteen years (the extent of the patent) would amount to the handsome sum of $134,400! The Patentee has CLEARED.

Beigs Carrier, Whiting, Trieste; Cordelia, Jones, Havana; in one county, and finds them to be very saleable generally in one county, and finds them to be very saleable generally but being deeply engaged in other business, which requires his whole attention, he is now induced to offer the patent right contact of the county of 800 towns, principally in New England, for the county of for a territory of 800 towns, principally in New England, for the comparatively trifling sum of 1 dollar and 68 cemper town, (the 1004th part of the probable amount of profits) and on liberal terms of payment.

This improvement has been in use more than a year, and its reputation is well established; approved by all-rejected by

Having been made acquainted with the medical qualities and witnessed the effects of "Dr Phelps' Arcanum," I feel much confidence in saying it is a preparation of medicine greatly superior to any thing of the kind, in curing those chronic diseases for which it is intended, and recommend it to invalids in preference to any other article whatever

New York, March 25, 1830.

My knowledge of the properties and operation of the "Arcamm of Dr Phelps," justify me in saying that it is far superior of any depurative syrup with which I am acquainted. In the most obstinate and ambiguous deseases, it displays effects peculiarly surprising. In those affections that resist the skill of the physician, such as Rheumanism, Syphilis, Scrofula, Ulcerations, and Diseases of the Skin, &c., I would recommend it as worthy of g eat confidence.

For the last few years I have suffered excessively by a Bil-For the last few years I have suffered excessively by a Bil-stous Mercurial Disease, which has rendered me frequently unfit for duty, and confined me as often to my berth. My diease was the sequela of bad treatment, while in the more tropical latitudes, and laboring under an acute inflamation of the liver, and other Billiary organs. Prior and pubsequently to our arrival in this port, I have had recourse to a great vari-ely of prescriptions, medicines and restricts. ety of prescriptions, medicines and nostrums-among which, were a number of bottles of Swaim's Panacea, Potter's Catholicon, the Rob of Laffecteur, &c., but without any benefit.— Dr Phelps being at that time a student of medicine in the Uni versity of Pennsylvania, advised me to make use of a newly discovered medicine, the Arcanum, which he believed would discovered medicine, the Arcanum, which he believed would succeed in relieving me, in consequence of the very signal effects himself and others had observed in its operation in variouglandular diseases, that were otherwise considered incurable. I commenced its use accordingly, and it affords me pleasure to state, that for several months past, not a vestige of the originity or secondary disease has been discoverable. I prize the medicine above all others with which I have ever been acquainted it is both pleasant and I believe certain it its effects, as a remady in a variety of chronic diseases, incident to tropical and other climates.

Gent.—I cannotrefrain from expressing my gratitude to you a offering me a bottle of Dr Phelps' Arcanum, as an experimen in my case of Rheumatism. have been dreadfully af flicted for upwards of twelve months, and for the last four of five months have scarcely been able to walk. I have used a dozen bottles of Swarm's Panacea, and found very little benefit from it. After taking the bottle of Arcanum, I found such a change in my whole system, that I was induced to try another, and for my surprise, the pains in my'legs all disappeared, and the Ulcers in one have completely healed up, and I can walk nearly as well as ever. I shall continue to take two bottles more, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my disease.

I remain, gentlemen, yours very respectfully.

Messrs Lay & Hendrickson, Druggists Savannah, (Geo.)

Extract of a letter from Dr Jones, a highly respectable physician, dated Baton Rosue. Louisiana, Dec. 28, 1833.—

The Arcanum had two powerful competitors, Swaim's Panacea, and Petter's Catholicon, which have been for years in circulation in this place. As far as I have had an opportunity of ascertaining its virtues, I believe the Arcanum to be superior to any article of the kind, yet offered to the public. Ignessible in a case of Irritable Ulcer of three years standing, situated on the Malleolus Extrenus—the individual thus afflicted was much emaciated and debilitated,—after one week's netendance, I put him upon the Arcanum, following the directions three bottles nearly effected a cure of the ulcer and bodily health.

I prescribed it in several Mercurial and Syphilitic Affections.

It prescribed it in several Mercurial and Syphilitic Affections, where it proved salutary. MERICAN MONTHLY MAGAZINE.-Pros A pectus-On the first of January, will be published the first number of the ninth volume of the American Monthly The pectus—On the lifts of January, with be published the first number of the ninth volume of the American Monthly and the American Monthly." One year has passed since, by the union of the New Envirand Magazine with this well established periodical, the resources of a publication which had previously absorbed those of the American Monthly Magazine, giving at once the steel in the American Monthly Magazine; giving at once so broad a basis to the work as to stamp us National character, and ensure its permanency. The number of pages, which have each month exceeded one hundred was at the same time increased, to make room for the additional supply of original matter; and each number of the work thoughout the year has been ornamented with an engraving, executed by the first artists in the country. How far the literary contents of the Magazine work has been ornamented with an engraving, executed by the first artists in the country. How far the literary contents of the Magazine have kept pace with these secondary improvements, the public are the best judges. The sim of the proprietors has been, from the first, to establish a periodical which should have a tone and character of its own; and which, while rendered sufficiently amusing to ensure its circulation, should and a content of the matter and content. How are the interary contents of the matter and content. How for the interary contents of the matter and content. How for the interary contents of the matter and content. The sale and content and co should have a tone and character of its own; and which, while rendered sufficiently amusing to ensure its circulation, should ever keep for its main object the promotion of good taste, and sound, vigorous, and fearless thinking, upon whatever subject it u dertook to discuss; which, in a word, should make its way in to public favour, and establish its claims to consideration, rather by what should be found in its pages than by the state of the tion, rather by what should be found in its pages than by any eclat which the names of popular contributers, or the dissemination of laudatory paragraphs, could confer. Nor has the American Monthly had any reason to regret having adopted and followed out the course prescribed to itself from the first. It has, indeed, lost both contributors and subscribers by the It has, indeed, lost both contributors and subscribers by the tone of some of its papers; but by the more enlightened, who have judged of the tendency of the work in the aggragate, and not by its occasional difference of opinion with themselves, it has been sustained with spirit and liberality. It has been enabled to emerge from intancy and dependence upon extrinsic circumstance; and the quickening power of many minds, laboring successively or in unison, has infused vitality into the creation while shaping it into form, until now it has a living principle of its own. It has become something, it is hoped, which "the world would not willingly let die."

But though the subscription list of the American Monthly has enlarged with the publication of every number during the last year, it is not yet sufficiently full to justify the publishers in carrying into effect their plan of liberally compensating

A N account of that most excellent Medicine prepared at Dr Loveman's Gilead House. Price 50 cents per bottle. Sold by appointment in Boston, at D. S. ROWLAND'S, 188 Washington street, Boston.

Washington street, Bosion.

"To administer to a mind diseased, pluck from the Memory arooted Sorrow,

"Raze out the written troubles of the Brain, and with some sweet oblivious Antidote,

"Cleanse the foul Bosom of that perilous stuff which weighs upon the Heart."

Dr. LOVEMAN'S Balm of Gilead is universally acknowledged to be peculiarly efficacious in all inward wastings, loss of annetic indicastion, depression of stricts troublings. of appetite, indigestion, depression of spirits, trembling or shaking of the hands or limbs, shortness of breath, and consumptive babits. It thins the blood, eases the most violent pain in the head and stomach, and promotes gentle perspiration. By the Medical Faculty this medicine is much admired being pleasant to the taste and smell, gently astringing the fibres of the stomach, and giving that proper tensity which a good digestion requires. good digestion requires.

Dr Loveman's Balm of Gilead is recommended to the weak, the relaxed, and debilitated, as an agreeable and speedy restrative; and considered as a cordial, is essential to the comfort of ladies of fashion, being a preventive against cold, when taken before going out to parties, balls, routs or the play. It will enliven the spirits and invigorate the mind and body, and if taken after fatigue, it will with a few hours sleep, take away all larguor consequent on broken rest, and give relief from every unpleasant sensation.

It is a most valuable remedy for such diseases as are attended with the following symptoms, namely—s great straitness of the breast, with difficulty of breathing—violent palpitations of the heart, sudden flasces of heat in various parts of tions of the heart, sudden flasces of heat in various parts of the pulse in the arms and limbs, back and the pulse in Providence, or Boston, viz—B. D tions of the heart, sudden flasces of heat in various parts of the body—at other times a sense of cold, as if water was poured on them—flying pains in the arms and limbs, back and belly, resembling those occasioned by the gravel—the pulse very variable, sometimes uncommonly slow, at other times very quick—yawning, the hiccough, frequent sighing, and a sense of suffocation, as from a ball or lump in the throat—alternate fits of crying and convulsive laughing—the sleep unsound and seldom refreshing, and the nation, often troubled sound, and seldom refreshing, and the patient often troubled with horrid dreams. Much has been said by interested individuals against Medicines that are advertised, but there is a very important observation to be made respecting Dr Loveman's Balm of Gilead, that unless its operation was gentled safe and efficacious, it could not have obtained the unexampled demand it has acquired.

NERVOUS DEBILITY "Without Health we can enjoy no Fortune; Honors, Riches, and all other advontages are useless."

HIPPOCRATES This Cordial has been uncommonly successful with young people who have the appearance and air of old age, who are cale, effeminate, benumbed, stupid, and even imbecile; whose podies are become bent, whose legs are no longer able to carry them, who have an utter distaste for every thing, and are totally incapacitated. Where the stomach is frequently disordered, the body is weakened; paleness, bodily decay and emaciation succeed, and the eyes sink into the head. The virtues of Dr Loveman's Balm of Gl'eadere demonstrated, in oradicating the worst and most dangerous symptoms of nervous debility, and nothing has tended so much to establish the fame of this medicine, as its certain success in those complaints which strike their roots so deep in the constitution, and are so fatal to the happiness of mankind.

Dr Loveman's Balm of Gilead has risen in repute with eve ry triaf of its efficacy. Some, perhaps, unacquainted with its virtues, not having perused the Guide to Heslth, may be industrially ced to ask what is the Balm of Gilead good for? What com-plaint doth it cure?—To answer this it will be necessary to "Hold the Mirror up to Nature."

Let those who are afflicted in the following manner reflect on the cause that produced such havor upon the "wholesome appetites and powers of life:"-disordered stomach, dry cough, weakness in the voice, hoarseness, shortness of breath upon the least exercise, and relaxation of the whole system. Those afflicted with paleness, languor of the eyes, weakuess of sight or memory, should take time to consider Linnaus's advice, that "youth is the important period for forming a robust constitution," and that "nothing is to be dreaded so much as premature excess." The foundation of a happy old age is a condeception of the properties and moderation at good constitution in youth; temperance and moderation at that age are passports to hagpy grey hairs.

For such as have violated these precepts, then, this healing balm is suitable-complaints included in the vague appellation of Nervous and Consumptive, are those for which it is eculiarly adapted.

In offering this medicine to the public, I can say with confidence that they will find great benefit by using it in all disea-ses recommended, as I am fully acquainted with the medical qualities, as they have been discovered by myself, and are extracted from vegetables, and I can truly say, there is no earthly danger in using the medicine by any person, no matter how they may be afflicted. This medicine has been used by a large number of persons, and have been cured of diseases of long standing, when all other medicines have failed. n23
